"We live in the age of self—the ideas of self-help, self-identifying, and do-it-yourself come up all day long.

Social media, pop culture, our own flesh, and even sometimes our own Christian-based materials tell us to look within, to try harder, and to find a 3-step plan to reach our goals and realize our dreams. We quickly find, though, that navel gazing is exhausting and we cannot conjure up the joy, meaning, and peace we sense we are meant to have.

Ephesians is a small book with big implications. Paul's letter to the new Christians at Ephesus draws our eyes off ourselves and onto Jesus. Meditating on the grace, mercy, and lavish love of our God in heaven is the antidote to the age of self."
